Recovery seen late in year

Simon forecasts economic upturn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon says he expects the nation's economic upturn will begin in the final three months of the year, which is later than earlier administration forecasts.

Simon and other administration economics advisers had predicted until recently that the nation's economic slowdown would reach bottom in mid-year, with an economic recovery beginning in the second half.

But Simon's emphasis on a resumption of growth in the fourth quarter, made Friday during an interview with Associated Press Radio, indicated the administration has revised its outlook.

There will be "positive growth of the Gross National Product in the fourth quarter continuing into 1976," Simon said.

The administration is forecasting that the GNP will decline 3.3 per cent this year, following the 2.2 per cent decline last year.

Simon also said much of the nation's economic downturn can be blamed on the Arab oil embargo last year, which he said pushed an already declining U.S. economy onto a much sharper downward path.

"The embargo changed the dimension of our entire economy," he said.

Simon also said the nation's recession is peculiar, because while some sectors like autos and housing are noticeably declining, "many businesses are producing all-out, and others are not far below capacity." He didn't say what these were.

He said economic planners and the Congress must be careful to prevent economic recovery from getting out of hand, once it begins.

Simon's comments came as the government announced that the unemployment rate for January was 8.2 per cent, a statistic AFL-CIO President George Meany said "spells tragedy for American families and disaster for the American economy."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford was concerned about the new level of unemployment but urged that "there not be panic."

Additional bad news on the economy came from Detroit, where Ford Motor Co. announced additional indefinite layoffs for more than 1,000 employees.

In other developments on the economy:

—Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board said while the board will ease credit to encourage recovery from the recession "we have no intention of permitting an explosion in money and credit."

—The nation's two largest commercial banks, Bank of America and First National City Bank, lowered their prime lending rates one-quarter point to 9 per cent.

—Stock prices dropped as the heavy trading pace of the last two weeks slackened somewhat. The Dow Jones Industrial average dropped 2.26 and ended the week with a gain of 8.22.

—Demand for oil products in the United States during 1974 fell for the first time in 32 years, studies by the Chase Manhattan Bank and the American Petroleum Institute showed.

—The nation's No. 6 steel producer, Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., announced that its earnings climbed 282 per cent in 1974.

—Outgoing Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan predicted that Ford's economic proposals would lead to a boom in the construction industry. He said the steady decline in interest rates, coupled with the President's request for an increase in the investment tax credit, would spur new construction.

Assembly eyes Rhodes plans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic legislative leaders say they will look at Gov. James A. Rhodes' four proposed constitutional amendments on their merits and won't oppose them for political reasons.

"We won't oppose them just because they come from a Republican governor," said House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston.

He added Friday that if the programs in the fields of industrial tax abatement, housing, transportation, and inner cities "will create jobs, as he (Rhodes) says, then I think there's a good chance we can support them."

But the speaker stressed that Rhodes has not yet revealed the details of a transportation bond issue and yet another to help rebuild inner cities—namely "where the money is coming from."

Riffe said the revenue bond approach, where bonds are retired with rents and fees charged for use of the facilities, is "going in the right direction." But he added: "the governor hasn't said how these other things are going to be paid for."

Rhodes said he will divulge the transportation and inner city programs at separate news conferences next week, and that his proposals will be in the hands of legislative leaders by Monday, Feb. 17.

In response to questions, the speaker said he thinks the legislature has enough time to place Rhodes' programs on the June 3 ballot, if it decides to go along with them. They must clear the legislature by March 4, or 90 days before the election, under Ohio law.

The legislature now is in recess until Feb. 18. But Riffe noted, "That still gives us three weeks, which should be enough time." He mentioned that two proposals could be introduced in each house to speed deliberations.

Rhodes still was "undecided," he said, whether he will approve or veto the Democrat-conceived $91.3 million school appropriations bill which has been on his desk since Friday. "We have 10 days," he told newsmen asking his intentions.

Republican legislative leaders urged Rhodes to veto the measure because Democrats refused appeals to earmark the funds for an "inflationary catch up" raise for teachers and school employees.

Rhodes promised a $1,000 pay raise for teachers last fall in his successful election campaign.

His 10-day statutory limit for action on the measure doesn't include Sundays and holidays, and thus ends Feb. 19.

Smithsonian Institution asks diaries of peace corpsmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you were in the Peace Corps and kept a diary, the Smithsonian Institution would like to hear from you.

It says it is convinced that scholars in the future will discover a wealth of data about little-known people and events in the diaries, journals and correspondence of former Peace Corps volunteers.

With this in mind, Herman J. Viola, director of the institution's anthropological archives, is seeking donations. But he would like you to write to him first.

"I am simply astounded at some of the events of significant historical interest that volunteers have been associated with in one way or another," Viola said. "The Peace Corps volunteer who works in a foreign society for several years often has an entirely different perspective of an event or development than has a visiting scholar."

In addition to journals and diaries, Viola is interested in letters written home, sketches made by volunteers or people they worked with, interesting photographs and tape recordings. Also valuable are topics dealing with natural phenomena, cultural norms, narratives, eyewitness accounts of historic events and anthropology, he said.

Persons interested in donating material are asked to send a description to Viola at the National Anthropological Archives, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., 20560.

Viola says he will respond with advice on what is desired and a short legal form transferring ownership. No money will be paid for the material but the Smithsonian will pay for postage charges and will return copies of donated material on request.

The archives contain many old journals and documents written by Americans who traveled all over the world a century ago. Viola said researchers have found them extremely useful.

"The experience and impact upon foreign cultures of 100,000 young volunteers during the past 14 years represents a unique chapter in American history," he said. "Future scholars will undoubtedly be interested in chronicling this movement as seen through the eyes of its participants."

$4.8 million ransom set for paintings

URBINO, Italy (AP) — Officials are awaiting the next move by thieves who asked $4.8 million ransom for return of three priceless Renaissance paintings stolen from the Urbino ducal palace.

Giovanni Spadolini, Italy's minister for cultural assets, declined to comment on whether the government would pay the ransom.

The ransom request was telephoned to the superintendent of galleries for the Marches region in central Italy on Friday. The caller demanded $1.6 million for each of the paintings, "The Flagellation of Christ" and "The Madonna of Senigallia" by Piero Della Francesca, and "La Muta," — Mute Girl — by Raphael.

Police sources said the caller promised he would call back again "soon." But they gave no other details.

Prosecutor Savoldelli Pedrocchi said the caller proved he had access to the paintings by describing details, including tiny signs on the back of the paintings.

The government remained silent on the case although earlier it indicated it expected the ransom request.

"The paintings cannot be sold," Spadolini said after the theft on Thursday. "Therefore we are either confronted with a new escalation of crime or with a case of pure madness."

Officials regarded a later ransom demand phoned to the mayor of Urbino as a hoax. The caller asked $160,000 for the return of the three paintings. The prosecutor said he gave only a superficial description of the paintings.

Pedrocchi said investigators had reached no conclusions after two days of investigation.

"The thieves haven't made one single mistake," he said. "It could be a rare case of perfect crime, carried out by a well-organized gang whose members would be normally considered beyond all suspicion."

Congressman can't return part of pay to government

WASHINGTON (AP) — A South Dakota congressman says he wants to return part of his salary to the taxpayers, but the federal government won't take the money back.

Rep. Larry Pressler instead offered the $4,250 — 10 per cent of his year's salary — to the State of South Dakota, which did accept it.

Pressler returned to South Dakota on Friday and wrote a check for $354, the second of 12 monthly installments. Earlier, he had mailed the first installment from Washington.

State Treasurer David Volk accepted the check and said it will be deposited in the state general fund.

Pressler, one of four Republicans to defeat incumbent Democratic congressmen last fall, said he was fulfilling a campaign pledge to set an antiinflationary example by returning 10 per cent of his pay.

He said he asked the House sergeant-at-arms to withhold the money.

"My offer was actually scoffed at," he said.

Senior citizens can swap homes in vacation program

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Senior citizens living on fixed incomes in low-income public housing can't afford to travel, see new sights and have fun, right?

Not necessarily. Senior citizens now can swap homes and cities in an federal experiment called the "Vacation Residential Exchange" program.

Portland is one of six cities involved in the program, sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"I can't think of a more fantastic idea than this one," said Fred Rosenbaum, chairman of the Housing Authority of Portland. "Darn it, why shouldn't elderly people in public housing have a vacation just like anyone else?"

"These are people who've worked all their lives, paid their bills, paid their taxes, maybe put their kids through college," he said. "Now, at age 65, why shouldn't they be able to kick up their heels a little?"

Beginning April 21, twenty senior citizens living in two housing authority high-rise structures will swap places with 20 others from Sacramento, Calif., for 10 days.

Travel will be by plane and train. The project includes an exchange of apartments, beds and bedding, and friends in what HEW officials hope will be burgeon into a nationwide program.

"This is going to give 20 people a new outlook, maybe a new life," said Ruth Drurey, director of resident security and services for the housing agency. She is coordinating the Portland-Sacramento exchange.

A government grant will pay for travel and incidentals. Other activities are being arranged by housing authorities in both cities.

Housing officials here are calling on Portland businesses, churches and service clubs that might offer the Sacramento group a tour, a lunch, sightseeing excursions or other activities.

A panel of public housing tenants and laymen will choose the 20 Portland residents for the experimental excursion by mid-March. Applications already are being distributed to interested tenants.

Agnew-Dilbeck partnership split

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Real estate developer Walter J. Dilbeck Jr. says former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made a lot of money and connections during their partnership and left Dilbeck all the problems.

Dilbeck made the comment Friday after Agnew announced he was terminating his one-year, $100,000 contract with Dilbeck because Dilbeck exploited their business relationship and defaulted on a final $25,000 installment.

Dilbeck, whose financial exploits included the ill-fated Global Baseball League which fizzled when all six teams got stuck in Venezuela with unpaid hotel bills, says Agnew is the exploiter.

"I haven't received a dime from him and he's taken $75,000 from me. I gave him a free ride. Everybody knew he was broke when I hired him," Dilbeck said in an interview Friday night. "He got a lot of real connections out of this deal and I got the problems."

Dilbeck said Agnew's final payment wasn't due until June 30, "but if he needs $25,000, I'd be glad to send it to him. That's what he's done before."

Dilbeck, 56, said he made advances on several occasions when Agnew asked him for money.

In a letter to Dilbeck which was released to news media, Agnew said Dilbeck's "desire for publicity has violated the confidentiality of many negotiations in progress and shocked our clients."

"In the beginning, I thought the problem was your inexperience with the news media. But now I must conclude that your exaggerations and outright misstatements of fact were a calculated scheme to promote your image at the expense of my integrity."

"His image wasn't too good when I hired him," Dilbeck said. "In fact, a lot of companies prefer dealing directly with me."

"All I did was what he told me. But I had a feeling this was coming. I've felt he's been making other deals in the East and I don't think he's been representing me."

Dilbeck also accused Agnew of working on an autobiography instead of tending to business.

Dilbeck has said publicly that he and Agnew had nearly completed a pair of multimillion-dollar deals in Kentucky — one for homes and apartments purchased with Mideast oil money, and the other for sale of a coal mine to Japanese interests. But Dilbeck said the only deal Agnew concluded was the $2-million sale of an Oklahoma coal mine. And Dilbeck said he never received any money from that transaction.

Bizarre drug store robbery being checked in Lynchburg

HILLSBORO — In a rather bizarre armed robbery, an elderly Lynchburg druggist and his wife were held captive in their home Thursday night while robbers took keys and a safe combination and stripped their village drug store of narcotics and cash.

Taken were an undetermined amount of hard drugs and possibly $1,000 or more in cash from the store. No trace of the robbers has been found.

THE ROBBERY occurred between 9 and 10 p.m. while the victims, James O. Wilbanks, 73, and his wife, Bernice, also 73, were held tied up in their bed by a threatening gunman.

Their home is about three blocks from the store which fronts on Main Street near the village square. Entry was made through a rear door.

Wilbanks said there was a knock on the door shortly before 9 p.m. Mrs. Wilbanks answered the door, thinking it was the usual visit — somebody needing a prescription at night.

A tall man, perhaps in his 20s, pushed his way inside and waved a gun. He made Mrs. Wilbanks lie on the floor while he closed the downstairs blinds. He then stuck the gun in her back and ordered her upstairs where her husband was reading in bed.

He made them get in bed and then bound them with a nylon sash cord.

The druggist said the gunman was about six feet tall, wore glasses and possibly had a wig. He tried to keep his face hidden from the couple. He made the pair keep the bed covers over their heads after they were bound. The druggist said the gunman initially hid from his view behind his wife.

Wilbanks said they heard other voices during the hour and a half ordeal and the gunman declared at one point, "There are seven of us." The druggist said they heard three or four voices at times. Others were apparently stripping the house of antiques and other valuable items.

The gunman, threatening Wilbanks with violence, demanded keys to the drug store and also the combination to the safe. "He threatened to bash my face in for just talking a time or two," the druggist said. He told them the keys were in his coat pocket on a chair downstairs.

Apparently some of the robbers went to the drug store and couldn't get in the first time.

"I told them they couldn't get that door open," Wilbanks recalled. They came back to the house and checked about the key and went back again and were successful this time.

Wilbanks said nothing was taken from the shelves of the store but only from the safe. Druggists are required to keep hard narcotics under lock and key. Wilbanks said they didn't take everything and apparently were selective in their drug choices.

In addition, there were about "two days receipts" in cash in the safe, plus some other cash from electric light bills collected by the store for the Dayton Power and Light Co., Wilbanks said. They were chiefly interested in cash. Some jewelry and similar items were taken along with the antiques at the home.

Wilbanks said he got a glimpse of a second man wearing a ski mask in the bedroom at one time. "He was about a head shorter than the gunman."

AFTER THE initial trouble with the key, the gunman demanded "if I was telling the truth and then kept cutting me off from answering by threatening to bash in my teeth," Wilbanks added.

One suspicious car was seen in the area and neighboring police departments were alerted. The car was a 1965 model green station wagon.

Lynchburg Police Chief Harold Shaffer and deputies from the Highland County Sheriff's Department are investigating. Deputies said they had no detailed report prepared on the robbery.

They still had $20,000 in unpaid medical bills. And the joint transplant operation, hospital care and doctors fees was expected to cost another $80,000.

Six weeks ago, The Associated Press reported Donnie's plight. Offers of help began pouring in and a special fund was set up to receive them.

Fund trustee Jerry Deason said Friday that nearly $30,000 in cash has been received. That, plus help from the Florida Bureau of Crippled Children and Social Security Administration, will take care of overdue medical bills and the transplant, he said.

He said no more money would be accepted for the Help For Donnie fund.

"There is no way we can thank the people all over the nation who sent money and the people in Naples who worked so doggone hard," said Todd.

Ahrens-Fox Company still lives

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Ahrens-Fox Fire Engine Co. is alive after 122 years and living in a dark Cincinnati warehouse, but production has slowed down.

The one-man operation turns out one fire truck each five years.

Love not profit has kept the firm going. How can you make a living when one man takes half a decade to build just one engine?

"Well, it's sort of neck and neck," grinned 64-year-old Richard "Curt" Nepper, the perfectionist who loves, owns and operates Ahrens-Fox.

Almost lost in the clutter of a dark old building behind a brewery in Cincinnati's West End sits the future pride of the Southern Campbell County, Ky., Fire Department.

Nepper looked with pride and affection at his latest product.

"It takes awhile," he said.

Nepper has been hand building the equipment for the fire truck chassis which he bought in 1969.

Nepper and his one part-time helper take immense pride in their work.

"I'm old-fashioned, I guess," said Nepper. "In the old days we all had pride in our work. Nobody had to stand over you with a club."

Nepper is widely known in the United States as the expert in servicing and repairing the 200 Ahrens-Fox fire trucks still in use. He said the company had produced 900 trucks over the years and distributed them world-wide.

Seven are in Rotterdam, Holland, and the Tokyo, Japan, fire department has a 1912 model it uses for parades, Nepper said.

"Detroit found one of our old horse-drawn steamers and wanted plans for a three-horse half-hitch," he said, pulling out a copy of the plans drawn in 1918.

Nepper mailed the Detroit Fire

Department a copy of the plan. Did he get a good price?

"Nah, I guess I should have a business manager," he said. "I gave it to them for nothing. They were really happy to get it."

The fire engine firm began in 1852 under the name of the Latta Fire Engine Co. after its founder, Alexander Latta, invented a workable steam pump. Chris Ahrens, an apprentice, took over in 1968 and changed the name to the Ahrens Fire Engine Co.

Charles Fox, former assistant fire chief of Cincinnati and an expert on hose trajectories, joined Ahrens in 1905 and the firm took its present name.

Ahrens-Fox switched to gas motors in 1911 and was one of the few companies which built everything themselves — wheels, motors, hoses and the rest.

"My first job here after I finished my engineering degree at the University of Cincinnati in 1928 was to measure the nuts to see that they were all the same size," said Nepper.

He has thousands of items produced

Temperatures were in the 20s under fair skies across Ohio this morning. Although, readings in the teens were reported in northern Ohio during the night.

Winds were southwesterly 10 to 20 miles per hour ahead of a cold front located Friday night from lower Michigan to Missouri. The front was forecast to move southeastward across Ohio today and early tonight, followed by colder weather that will continue into Monday.

A little light snow was expected to accompany the front, but heavy amounts are not anticipated.

Ahead of the front today, temperatures were to be in the 20s in northern Ohio, and range to the 30s in the south as cloudiness increases.

Readings tonight will drop to the low 20s and teens, along with cloudy skies and a chance of light snow.

On Sunday, the mercury may not rise above the upper teens or low 20s, as northerly winds bring scattered snow flurries off Lake Erie in northern Ohio, with partly cloudy skies farther south.

Cold with occasional periods of snow. Daily high temperatures from the lower 20s to low 30s. Lows 5 to 15 early Monday and in the upper teens and low 20s Tuesday and Wednesday.

Paint Creek project included in budget

HILLSBORO — Paint Creek Reservoir in Highland County is listed for $709,000 in the current budget under consideration by the U.S. Congress. The flood control project and recreation area is situated seven miles south of Greenfield.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers indicated this would be covering the remainder of a current contract for construction work in the dam area of the reservoir. The work under the contract would continue into the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

An expansion program totaling $1,349,000 was launched last fall in the Paint Creek area under a contract awarded to the L.R. Skelton Co., of Columbus.

SOME INITIAL work was started last fall but has slowed down during the winter months. Projects, however, are generally on schedule, according to Robert Shelton, resident engineer of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The pace of construction will pick up this spring.

Some of the new roadway is nearly completed and ready for stone and paving. The program calls for two parking lots, three comfort stations, a sewage treatment plant, two dwellings, two picnic areas, a playground, a hiking trail with pedestrian bridge and scenic overlook.

Most of the work will be concentrated in the hilltop area surrounding the dam itself. However, one playground, comfort station, picnic area and parking lot will be at nearby Deer Park landing, a short distance away.

The scenic area will be near the entrance to the park and will include a new parking lot. There will be a combination utility building, general office and visitors lounge on the hilltop. The two dwellings will be for the general park supervisor and his assistant.

Vote set in extention office

Beef marketing referendum is scheduled here Feb. 11-13

Beef producers throughout the state will have an opportunity to vote on an amendment to the Ohio Beef Marketing program, Feb. 11-13. The Ohio Beef Marketing program is a self-help program initiated by beef producers in a referendum held in 1970. The goal of the program is to improve the net income of beef producers by increasing demand for beef through market promotion.

To further expand promotional efforts, an amendment to the existing Ohio Beef Marketing program is being submitted for a referendum to all eligible Ohio producers of bovine animals. The amendment proposes to change the assessment from 10 cents to one-tenth of one per cent of the selling price per head on all bovine animals sold.

Fayette County beef producers will vote at the Fayette County Extension Service Office, 319 S. Fayette St. Ballots will be available and voting must be done during usual office hours 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Feb. 11, 12 and 13.

The Ohio Beef Marketing program is administered by a 15-member operating committee made up of beef producers, appointed by the Ohio Director of Agriculture. The operating committee is responsible to administer the provisions of the Ohio Beef Marketing program by conducting a program to advertise beef, develop new markets, and conduct market development research.

The proposed change in the program will go into effect only if it is approved by beef producers in Ohio. In order to be approved, the plan must receive "yes" votes of two-thirds of the producers voting and they must have produced at least 51 per cent of the beef marketed by all producers voting. Or, the proposal also can be approved by 51 per cent of the producers if they marketed two-thirds of the production.

If the referendum fails, the program will continue financed by the check-off at the current rate of 10 cents per head.

In 1974 the 10 cents per head check-off raised nearly $79,000. It is estimated that the one-tenth of one per cent check-off will raise approximately $300,000 annually. The National Livestock and Meat Board will continue to receive 30 per cent of the check-off income.

T-Bone club meet set

By JOHN P. GRUBER

County Extension Agent, Agriculture Randy Reed, Extension Specialist in Animal Science, will be the speaker for the February T-Bone Club meeting Wednesday, February 12, 7 p.m. at the Washington Inn. Reed will show slides and talk on his recent tour of the Beef Cattle Industry in Australia. This is a program that should be of interest to all cattlemen in the county as well as businessmen.

The T-Bone Club meetings are sponsored by the Fayette County Cattlefeeders' Association and the Extension Service. Programs are planned to keep cattlemen and related businessmen informed on activities and topics of interest in the beef industry.

Another important beef activity next week is the beef marketing referendum. It is important that every beef producer understand the beef marketing program and votes. Each producer should be able to vote "yes" or "no" from a basis of understanding.

The County Extension Office has been designated as the polling place in each county. The vote will be held February 11, 12, 13, 1975. An impartial observer has been appointed by the Ohio Director of Agriculture to supervise the vote.

The vote is to determine if the check-off for beef promotion should be increased from 10 cents per head to one-tenth of one per cent of the sale value. Funds derived from the check-off are used to finance the Ohio Beef Marketing program. The purpose of the program is to promote the sale and use of beef and beef products and to support the beef promotion, research, and education of the Beef Industry Council of the National Livestock and Meat Board. Approximately 30 per cent of the funds collected go to the National Livestock and Meat Board.

Producers who are not satisfied with the program can request a full refund of the check-off from their cattle.

PASTURE LAND in Fayette County has sometimes been neglected as an unimportant crop. But increasing attention may need to be paid to pasture improvement to reduce feed costs for beef and dairy cows and sheep.

New innovations in pasture improvement have resulted through development of no-till pasture seeders. And a meeting has been scheduled for farmers in Pickaway, Fayette, and Fairfield Counties for Tuesday, February 11 to discuss the concept of no-till pasture improvement. The meeting will be held at the Pickaway Arms Restaurant, 115 E. Mound St., Circleville, starting at 10 a.m. and concluding shortly after lunch.

One of the reasons behind such a meeting is that through the courtesy of Columbus Production Credit Association a no-till pasture seeder will be available for use in these three counties. Al Baxter, Area Extension Agronomist, Gene Baynon and Dwane Bishop, of the Chevron Chemical Co., will discuss steps in pasture renovation, seeding rates, herbicides, and fertilization rates.

All Fayette County Farmers utilizing pasture in their farming program are encouraged to attend. Call the Extension Office (335-1150) by noon Monday, February 10, if you plan to attend.

THE NEW law permitting taxation of farm land based on its current agricultural use value rather than on its speculative value, will be discussed at a county-wide meeting set for Tuesday, February 18, 7:30 p.m. at the Mahan Building. The meeting has been set jointly by County Auditor Mary Morris and the Cooperative Extension Service to explain the effect of this new tax law on Fayette County Farmers. We'll have complete details on the meeting and the new farm land tax law in this column next Saturday.

TWO FAYETTE Countians fared well at the Louisville Barrow Show this past week. Rusty Coe, Jeffersonville, had third and sixth place middle weight cross-bred and Jerry Hoppes had 14th light weight cross-bred. Jerry Hoppes also had seventh place truck-load. We also understand that Bi-Lane Sisters, Sabina, had first place medium weight and second place light weight cross-bred and Reserve Champion cross-bred.

Lamb and mutton processing drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's meatpacking plants turned out 10 per cent less lamb and mutton last year than they did in 1973 while production of other red meats jumped sharply, according to Agriculture Department statistics.

Sheep producers have been cutting back flocks for many years, however, and much of the decrease probably reflected that trend. As of Jan. 1, for example, the sheep and lamb inventory on farms and ranches totaled 14.5 million head, a drop of 11 per cent

3 grants awarded for antipoverty work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development has awarded three grants totaling $121,000 to three Community Action agencies for antipoverty activities.

The Corporation of Washington-Morgan Counties, Marietta, will receive $43,093; the Har-Ca-Tus County Community Action Organization, Uhrichsville, $42,449, and the Wood, Sandusky, Ottawa and Seneca Community Action Commission, Inc., of Fremont, $35,437.

during the year and 18 per cent below Jan. 1, 1973.

There are many reasons for the longterm decline. Many producers have shifted to other livestock enterprises have been an increasing problem in the West; and except for a temporary surge a year or two ago, low wool prices have discouraged stepped up production.

Further, while imports of fresh, frozen and chilled beef and mutton have been under some type of control most of the time since 1964, frozen lamb imports have not been restricted.

In a year-end review of U.S. meat production, department experts said total meat output in 1974 was more than 37.3 billion pounds. Lamb meat accounted for only 454 million — 1.2 per cent of the total. That was down from 504 million pounds or 1.5 per cent of all red meat in 1973.

By comparison, beef production last year was more than 22.8 billion pounds, 61.2 per cent of total red meat. Also, 1974 beef output was up 8 per cent from 1973.

Pork production was nearly 13.6 billion pounds, making up 36.4 per cent of the U.S. red meat supply. Pork output was also 8 per cent above 1973, the report showed.

Veal, reflecting sales of calves by ranchers and farmers faced with low prices and high feed costs, totaled 448 million pounds last year, a 38 per cent increase from 1973. Veal accounted for about 1.2 per cent of total red meat.

Department experts say the decline in lamb production is continuing this year. As of Jan. 1, they said, sheep and lambs being fed grain for slaughter total 2,058,000 head in the 26 states which account for most production.

The feed lot inventory was down 22 per cent from Jan. 1 last year, which meant a further decline in lamb and mutton meat supplies early in 1975.

Ohio Angus Association holds annual elections

James P. Keen, of London, was re-elected as president of the Ohio Angus Association at this group's 1975 annual business meeting held on Saturday, January 25, at the Fawcett Center for Tomorrow in Columbus. Also re-elected to their positions were the vice-president, David E. Evans, of Utica, and the treasurer, William C. Strayer, of Elida.

Those members elected to serve on the board of directors of the Ohio Angus Association were Dr. E.H. Winterhoff, of Springfield, Henry Bergfeld, of Summitville, Walter King, of Fremont, David Meeuwse, of Glenmont, and John Jelley, of Sidney. Jelley's son, David, is president of the Ohio Junior Angus Association and will represent the juniors on the board of directors. The names of the following representative directors and the regional association which they represent were also submitted during the business meeting:

Northeastern Ohio Association - James Novak, Newark; Eastern Ohio Association - Mrs. Carol Secrest, Caldwell; Black Swamp Association - Robert Henline, Gibsonburg; North Central Ohio Association - Warren E. Smith, Bucyrus; Marion County Association - Lloyd Matteson, Richwood; Ohio Valley Association - Victor Hauke, Hillsboro; South Central Ohio Association - C. Wayne Baird, Good Hope; Heart of Ohio Association - Henry Whitehead, Granville. Other directors at large on the board are Donald Hall, of Carrollton, Fred N. Penick, of Hebron, Merlin Woodruff, of Urbana, and James M. Rentz, of Coldwater. Richard S. Sour, of Urbana, remains as the chairman of the board.

One of the highlights of the evening banquet was the crowning of the 1975 Miss Ohio Angus, Sue Ellen Molitor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Molitor of Fayetteville. Sue was crowned by the 1974 Miss Ohio Angus, Jayne Honeck of Malinta. Miss Susan Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wilson, of Washington C.H., was selected as alternate queen.

Pork output declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pork production by the nation's packing plants may drop to the lowest level in nine years during the first six months of 1975 as a result of sharp cutbacks by hog producers, says the Agriculture Department.

As a result, hog prices may improve slightly to around $40 to $45 per 100 pounds through June, including a possible average of $41 to $43 per hundredweight during the second quarter.

Meal output down; rise seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — World production of high-protein meal used mainly as livestock feed is expected to decline this year for the first time since the late 1950s but Agriculture Department indications point to a rapid recovery in 1976.

Total protein meal output in 1975 — which includes soybean meal, fish meal and other sources — is expected to be less than 61.5 million metric tons, a decline of 4.6 million tons from record production last year, a department expert said Monday.

Alan E. Holz of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said the decline will stem mainly from a smaller U.S. soybean crop last year, declines in sunflower seed production in Eastern Europe and a reduced peanut crop in India.

But U.S. soybean production, which accounts for about one-half of the world's protein meal, is expected to increase significantly in 1975 given a favorable growing season. That will provide a boost in meal production next year.

The soybean increase was indicated last week in a USDA report on planting intentions of farmers in key states. The report, based on surveys of farmers on Jan. 1, showed producers intend to boost soybean plantings 8 per cent from 1974.

People in the desert

The Indians of California were there a long time - 10,000 years, anyway, perhaps four times that long. They lived off the land; they learned to live in harmony with the land, and to preserve it for future generations.

Modern man could learn something from that, if he would. The question is: Will he? There are disturbing contrary indications, even though some people do understand what the record of the aboriginal Indians says to us.

This is notably true of Dr. Sylvia Broadbent, chairman of the Department of Anthropology at the University of California in Riverside. She emphasizes that in the long course of their history the California Indians adapted to enormous climatic changes yet through it all managed without destruction of the land.

Contemporary man is rather different. Besides taking over the land for buildings, streets, parking lots and the like, he also leaves his mark on hitherto unspoiled open country. That is most evident in the Southwestern desert, which for all its air of harshness and austerity is extremely fragile, vulnerable to damaging human activity.

This is dramatically shown by the impact of the Mojave Desert motorcycle races. The Bureau of Land Management designs the route to avoid archaeological sites, but the last time many of the 3,000 two-wheelers in the race ploughed through an unrecorded site. To say the least, they irrevocably altered the site.

To a lesser extent, other visitors are guilty of disturbing the desert and its archaeological record. We concur in Dr. Broadbent's plea to those who go into the desert to move about with care, especially on wheels. For as she notes, from the remains of ancient human activity "we can learn a little bit more about what kind of creatures people really are in all their variety, which is what anthropology is all about."

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 9

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Conscientious application of your talents now will bring gains for some time to come. But you MUST have confidence in yourself — and in your goals.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Keep your eye on the ball and your stock will soar. A "meeting of minds" could produce some revelations, startling new ideas which could eventually prove profitable.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

An energetic ally may come to your support, personally or financially. Push all worthwhile aims. Especially favored: outdoor pursuits, organizational activities.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A vital period. Most endeavors should prosper, but think before you speak or act. And do avoid extremes. There is a trend now to the unusual, even the bizarre.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Good stellar influences should help you to solve difficult problems now. But don't be carried away by your vivid imagination which, properly directed, can bring you great success.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

A number of things will have to be organized before you can proceed efficiently. Emphasize composure, delicacy of approach, calmness in discussion.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Certain situations could annoy IF you permit. Take all in stride. Also, think well before making decisions.

Smoking ban bill pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two bills to ban smoking in public places have been introduced into the legislature. Both would make the offense a minor misdemeanor under Ohio law.

Reps. Paul S. Wingard, R-40 Stow, and Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord, offered a House bill to outlaw smoking in places of public assembly.

Sen. H. Norris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland, was the main sponsor of a Senate version. He has 10 cosponsors.

Under both bills, smoking areas could be set aside in public meeting places.

The House bill would ban smoking in any place that holds 20 persons. The Senate bill makes it unlawful in places holding 25 or more.

"THE TIME AND ENERGY YOU SPENT ON LOOP-HOLES, ISN'T THERE A REBATE FOR THAT?"

Gas shortage hurts Ohio jobs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The effects of the natural gas shortage on Ohio industry and business cannot be counted in dollars and cents.

"But it's hurting us, there is no doubt about it," said William Costello, Ohio Manufacturing Association spokesman.

Nor can a certain part of Ohio's 6.7 per cent unemployment rate be attributed to the natural gas curtailments, but layoffs have been one indirect result of the cutbacks.

Natural gas users in Ohio, some 3,500 industrial and 16,000 commercial customers, are operating with 90 to 25 per cent of previous years' supplies.

"You can't operate a plant on 45 per cent of the gas used two years ago," Costello said. "That doesn't even account for growth."

The severe curtailments around the state have not only cost industry and business money and Ohioans jobs, but also shortened work weeks, temporarily shut down factories, and resulted in production and sales losses.

The industries that use natural gas in their production process — such as food processing, glass and steel manufacturing — have been hardest hit by the shortage.

In some cases, the economic recession and lessened demand for a product has decreased the impact of the gas curtailments.

"The economy is down and therefore the requirement for energy is also down," explained Robert Ryan, industrial energy coordinator for the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Natural gas users could feel the shortage more when the economy gets going again and there is not energy to "supply that grease to the wheels," he said.

Meanwhile, Ohio industrial and commercial natural gas users around the state are learning to cope with the energy shortage.

Common sense conservation methods, furnace modifications and technology innovations for more efficient gas usage enabled Buckeye Steel Castings in Columbus to conserve 35 per cent of its gas usage, said P. K. Kennedy, vice president of manufacturing engineering.

Now operating under a 55 per cent curtailment, the company has shut off heat in its plant, lowered office temperatures and switched to alternate fuels at a greatly increased cost, Kennedy said.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Nothing wrong with saying "I like you"

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about the number of girls who have written to you saying: "How can I get a guy interested in me without having it look like I'm chasing him?"

First off, I am a 21-year-old college man who would like some reasonable answers to the following questions:

1. Why can't a girl ask a guy out for a date? As a male, I would welcome girls who find me attractive enough to ask me out. Believe me, Abby, I'm fairly attractive myself and get my share of dates, but I see nothing wrong with girls being on an equal basis with men when it comes to the dating game.

2. Why can't a girl be the aggressive one if she so chooses?

3. Why is it "wrong" for a girl to pursue guys?

I.W.: BRONX, N.Y.

DEAR I.W.: Where have you been? Plenty of girls ask guys out. More girls ask guys "over," however, because there is no tab to pick up, which takes the pressure off both of them.

And many girls ARE aggressors. They don't apologize for it. Nor should they. All relationships should be based on honesty. And what's more disarming than having someone say "I like you"? It doesn't matter who says it first. Girls are people, and people shouldn't play games. They should express themselves honestly, naturally and without embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: In a courtship between a woman 65, and a man 67, who should offer the first kiss?

Please don't think this is a joke. It isn't I am a widow and he is a widower and we are getting very close to where I will need the answer to the above question.

If he should make the first move in that direction I want to know if I should act coy, or should I respond? Or am I the one who should make the advances to let him know I am not adverse to a romantic relationship? (I am not, but I don't want to push it.)

Women used to sit back and let the man make all the overtures, but perhaps women's lib has changed all that. Or has it?

PROPER BUT PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: If you feel like kissing him, go ahead and kiss him. He'll probably meet you halfway and beat you to the finish line.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live next door to my son and his wife. They have only one child, a lovely 17-year-old daughter. She goes with a very nice 18-year-old neighbor boy.

My son and his wife went skiing over the weekend and left their daughter home alone unchaperoned. She's a good girl, but I think it looked bad. (I wasn't even asked to look in on her.)

We live in the kind of community where everybody knows everything that goes on, so I told my daughter-in-law that leaving her young daughter like that might cause the girl to be talked about, even though her behavior was the best.

She told me to mind my own business!

Was I wrong to say what I did, Abby? I was only warning her that gossip could start. So far I haven't heard anything, but I am 63 years old and I've seen innocent girls fall victim to vicious gossip. Was I wrong?

CONCERNED GRANNY

DEAR CONCERNED: You meant well, but obviously your "concern" was not appreciated. Don't offer any more unsolicited advice, Granny.

In 1955, Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov resigned and was succeeded by Marshal Nikolai Bulganin.

Ten years ago: The British government banned cigarette advertising on television because of the danger of harm to health.

Five years ago: A terrorist bomb wrecked the South Vietnam government's press center in downtown Saigon.

One year ago: Three Skylab astronauts returned to earth after setting a record of 84 days in orbit.

Today's birthdays: Actress Lana Turner is 55. Actress Dame Edith Evans is 87.

Thought for today: A bore is a person who talks when you wish him to listen. — A. G. Bierce, American writer, 1842-1914.

MISS SUSAN M. CULLEN

June wedding is planned

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cullen of West Carrollton, formerly of Washington C.H., announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Marie, to Stephen Bruce York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert York of Dayton. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Addie Barger of 825 Conley Ct., and the niece of Miss Mary Jo Cullen of 710 Oakland Ave.

Miss Cullen, a graduate of West Carrollton High School in 1974, is employed at the Clinical Laboratory at Kettering Memorial Hospital.

Her fiancé, who has completed two years of undergraduate work at Wright State University, plans to attend the University of Toledo and major in Pharmacy. He is also an employee of Frisch's.

The couple is planning a June wedding.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Harold Foster, Mrs. Merrill Lynch, and Mrs. Frank Dill, who reminded all of the OCCL Spring Conference to be held March 22 at Miami Trace High School. All reservations must be made by March 11, and members not participating in the projects, will be fined doubly.

A new slate of officers will be presented at the March meeting, by the nominating committee, consisting of

Activities announced by Circle 1

Persinger Hall was the setting for the meeting of Circle 1. A coffee hour, with Mrs. H.L. Osborne and Mrs. William Wallace, presiding, preceded the business session. There were 23 members and one guest present.

Mrs. Herbert Clickner presented devotions with the theme "A Needy World." Reports were heard and Mrs. Hubert Ferneau gave the prayer of dedication for the 'least coin' offering.

A "Sewing Day" was planned for 10 a.m. Feb. 19 at the church, and the Women's Association meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m., Feb. 27 at the church. The Spring Retreat will be April 15 and 16 for all women of the church at Geneva Hills.

A report of visitations and calls was made.

Mrs. Harold Vail gave the Mission Interpretation, Miss Ruth Stecher the Yearbook of Prayer report and Mrs. Harvey Heironimus presented the Bible study taken from the book, They Met Jesus.

Mrs. Carman Society hostess

The Women's Missionary Society of Sugar Creek Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Walter Carman for the February meeting. Mrs. Gene Donahoe, president, called the meeting to order and devotions were presented by Mrs. Carman entitled "The Secret Place on Living Today - not Yesterday" or Tomorrow.

Reports were presented by Mrs. Harry Campbell, Mrs. Carman and Mrs. Harold Sprague. Members are urged to read from the Book of Amos, as well as other Christian books. Mrs. Walter Henk, chairman of Special Mission, read letters which she had received from Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rodine, missionaries in Alaska, and Miss Carrie Bell Brown of Illinois, home special interest missionary. Mrs. Charles Mills reported the Latin American and Overseas quotas had been sent, and quotas given by American Baptist Women had also been filled and delivered.

Mrs. Mander Boggs, Home Mission chairman, reported a donation had been made by the Society, and Mrs. Robert Ellars asked that all 'save money weekly' for the Hunger Box, to be collected in June and sent to the American Baptist Relief Fund. This will be used to help starving children in other parts of the world.

The Book of Obadiah was assigned for reading for March.

Mrs. Donahoe reminded all of the "Spiritual Retreat" planned March 8 at Camp Kirkwood, Wilmington. The theme of the Retreat is "Encourage One Another." The Society also agreed to renew its membership to Church Women United. March 7 is the World Day of Prayer observance, and will take place in Saint Colman Catholic Church.

The program topic, "Thought Conditions" by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, was presented by Mrs. Carman. All were urged to use these thoughts in their daily lives.

A dessert course was served to Mrs. Alan Bentley, Mrs. Charles Temple, Mrs. Boggs, Mrs. Ellars, Mrs. Sprague, Mrs. Henk, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Donahoe, Mrs. Harry Campbell and Mrs. Michael Campbell.

Mrs. Alan Bentley will be hostess for the next meeting, March 6, with Mrs. Don Reeves as assisting hostess.

Dear friends,

Have you heard the remark, "I just can't make a personal call of sympathy when my friends are bereaved. I never know what to say."

We have observed that it isn't necessary to say anything. Your presence speaks for itself. Friends mean more to a family, in time of bereavement, than anything else. The act of sharing their grief is deeply comforting.

Respectfully,

Ex-highway chief succumbs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Funeral services are scheduled here Monday for Pearl E. Masheter, who served as state highway director under Gov. James A. Rhodes' first two terms.
Masheter, 73, died Friday in Riverside Hospital of an apparent heart attack after being stricken in his suburban Upper Arlington home.
Masheter, who served from 1963-71, was praised by Rhodes Friday as having made "the greatest contributions to the Ohio highway system of any man, building more highways than any other director."

Masheter played a role in the final alignment of Ohio's 1,529-mile interstate highway network and started a program of feeder and access routes to the state's industrial and recreation areas.
Before becoming highway director, Masheter served 35 years with the highway department and operated an engineering consulting service in Columbus.

Glenn blasts Ford budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said Friday President Ford's projection of continuous unemployment of between 7.5 and 8.1 per cent indicates "even he doesn't feel his nearly billion-dollar-a-day budget will adequately stimulate the economy."

Glenn described Ford's predictions of continued unemployment and double-digit inflation for the next three years as "a confession of economic mismanagement."

The Ohio Democrat said in a statement that government leaders failed to "grapple with energy shortages until the embargo-induced energy crisis became an energy catastrophe and contributed a major share to this recession."

He said the nation has needed a three-pronged approach to energy including conservation, increased domestic petroleum exploration and development of alternative fuel sources.

"Instead, President Ford's oil tax will have the effect of making too-high petroleum prices unbearably high, in turn raising the price of virtually everything and taking buying power from consumers — contributing further to a business slowdown," he added.

Rising unemployment rate hikes state office forces

By LOUISE COOK
 Associated Press Writer
 The rising unemployment rate has created a mini job boom at state unemployment offices. An Associated Press sampling shows officials in every area are hiring extra workers to deal with the long lines of jobless Americans seeking unemployment benefits.
 "We've enlarged the staff because we have a lot heavier workload ... and because the federal government has introduced two new (public service job) programs that we have to handle," said Raymond Hope, director of unemployment insurance for Colorado.

 Hope said the staff handling benefits at the state's 33 unemployment offices has been doubled from 200 to 400 since the end of December.
 Terry Wiley, assistant manager of the unemployment office in Minneapolis, said he did not know exactly how many people had been added.

"Personnel changes so fast and we've hired so many more that I don't really know how many people work here now," he said.
 However, Wiley estimated there had been a 50 per cent increase in the number of employees at all of the unemployment offices in the Twin Cities area.
 Boston has boosted the staff at its three unemployment offices from 80 to 150 since September; the number of employees at the two Birmingham, Ala., offices has grown from 25 to 43 since November; the Louisville, Ky., unemployment staff has increased from 17 to 51 since the middle of last October.

 The Labor Department reported that 851,700 Americans filed new claims for unemployment insurance in the week ended Jan. 18, nearly double the number filing in the same week a year earlier.

Second half errors beat Washington

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

Will wonders never cease? The Wilmington Hurricane stepped onto their home court last night, owners of the worst record of the seven South Central Ohio League teams, with a task of defeating the Washington C.H. Blue Lions.

Behind by as much as 17 points in the second quarter, the Hurricane ended the game in a flurry as they whipped the Lions by a score of 63-58. Wilmington now owns a 2-8 league record while their overall mark is at 3-11. Court House's SCOL card now reads 3-7 and their overall record drops to 5-10.

Washington added to its troubles by committing an astronomical total of 31 turnovers in the game to Wilmington's 15 miscues. The Blue Lions managed to stay even with the Hurricane through most of the other aspects of the game.

Washington C.H. collected 39 rebounds while Wilmington pulled down 32, but Wilmington has more steals, 18-9, and more assists than did the Lions, 12-10. Both teams made 25 field goals with Washington shooting 55 times for 45 per cent and Wilmington shooting 65 times for 38 per cent.

However, the deciding factor in the game was the free throw line. The Hurricane amassed 13 points at the charity stripe while the Lions could manage only eight. Wilmington's average was 65 per cent and Washington's was 62 per cent.

As the game unfolded, everything Washington put into the air came down through the cords. Behind the scoring of Chuck Byrd, John Denen, and Doug Phillips, the Lions put 18 points on the scoreboard while limiting the Hurricane to just nine scores. In the first quarter, Byrd threw in 10 markers backed up by Denen and Phillips, each with four.

In the second period, more of the same prevailed, but to a lesser degree. Again Phillips, Byrd, and Denen got all the points, but they didn't get as many while Wilmington got more. Phillips tossed in eight points in the quarter while Byrd collected six and Denen scored the other two.

Freshman Gary Williams and substitute Tony Berlin chalked up almost all of the tallies for Wilmington as they each scored six points in the second stanza work was Bill Crowe who put in four more points. The score at halftime was 34-27 in favor of Washington C.H.

After intermission, Wilmington got hot and stayed hot and Washington went cold and stayed that way. The Hurricane put together strings of six,

Leading the scoring charge for Washington was Byrd, the SCOL's top scorer in league games, with 24 points. Following him was Phillips with 19 counters, Denen with eight points and Dewey Foster with seven.

For Wilmington, the trio of Williams, Berlin, and Crowe all scored in double figures. Williams led the team with 21 markers with Berlin and Crowe each chipped in with 16.

The Blue Lions rebounding was led by Phillips with 15 boards while Denen pulled down nine and Ken Upthegrove and Eddie DeWees each brought down four.

Williams also led his team in rebounding with 16 caroms, backed up by Dale Achtermann with five.

Washington's next game will be this Tuesday evening at Miami Trace to renew the SCOL and county rivalry. The tip-off time for the reserve game six, and five consecutive points on the scoreboard to go ahead in the game. Williams, Crowe, and Berlin were still the workhorses for Wilmington as they scored seven, six, and four points, respectively in the quarter.

In the third quarter, the trio of Denen, Phillips, and Byrd cooled off some and so did the Lions' scoring attack as they put just 10 points on the scoreboard in the third quarter.

During the fourth quarter, Wilmington successfully staved off a last-minute surge by Court House and finally won the game, 63-58. As late as 34 seconds to go in the game, Washington was down by three points and had the ball but couldn't get the needed basket. Fouls and turnovers hampered the Lions most in the final quarter, as they did throughout the night.

PRESSURE'S ON — Down by as many as 17 points in the first half, Wilmington was forced to resort to a pressing defense. Doug Phillips (53), passing, finds he can't get the ball inside to Chuck Byrd (25), and the Lions were forced to settle for many outside shots. Wilmington won the game, 63-58.

Lion reserves stomp 'Cane

The Washington C.H. Blue Lion junior varsity held off a late surge by the Wilmington reserves to hold on to win 45-44. The Lion javees were behind for a good part of the game but streaked at the end to insure victory.

High scorers for the Washington team was Scott Johnson with 16 points and Mark Heiny with 12 tallies. Helping in the scoring late in the game was Doug Stewart, who ended the game with nine points.

Wilmington's leading scorers were Tony Johnson and Greg Williams, who each canned 10 points. Complimenting them was Steve Williams with seven counters.

Washington is now 8-7 on the season while being 6-4 in the league. The Hurricane overall card now reads 7-7 while their SCOL record is also 6-4.

The Blue Lions next encounter will be at Miami Trace against the Panthers next Tuesday while Wilmington does battle with the Shermans at Unioto the same evening.

Claims of drug use in NFL found to be unsubstantiated

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I'm sure Roxie is going to write a book on this—she'll make a million dollars," a federal drug official said Friday as he dismissed as unsubstantiated a young woman's allegations that she acted as a drug courier for professional athletes.

A month-long investigation by the Drug Enforcement Administration failed to support any of the statements made by Roxie Ann Rice involving National Football League players, said Thomas H. Maher, special agent in charge.

Maher said the federal investigation has "determined that her movements and involvements with members of the NFL were not concerned with drug activity."

The federal agent's remarks were welcomed by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who said the league's investigation concurred with that of the DEA.

Miller dropped to second place

PAM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — There was a rather wistful quality to Don Bies' voice as he observed: "I feel that somewhere along the way I deserve to win one."

He hasn't yet. In six full years on the pro golf tour the slender, soft-spoken, 37-year-old Bies has won more than $280,000 in prize money—but he has yet to collect a title.

He took a major step in the right direction Friday, though, when he slipped, almost unobserved, past suddenly scrambling Johnny Miller and into the third-round lead in the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Bies, a low-key type who attracts no galleries, has no idiosyncracies, dresses conservatively and blends into the crowd, took his surprise lead with a six-under-par 66 that vaulted him one stroke in front of the phenomenal Miller and Tom Shaw, a still-bubbly character despite three years of trials and troubles.

"Unfortunately, as has happened in the past, because of the widespread publicity given to the irresponsible allegations, the results do not fully remove the stigma placed on some players and therefore on the league as a whole," Rozelle said.

Ohio colleges losing money on athletics

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The University of Cincinnati lost more money on its athletic program than any of the 12 state supported or assisted universities in the state—$908,999—according to the Ohio Auditor's office. Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson said 11 of the 12 universities lost money in the 1973-74 school year.

Ohio State was the only one to make money, $518,322.

Ferguson's report was in response to a suggestion by Ohio regent Thomas L. Conlon who asked that the board of regents investigate intercollegiate athletic programs to be able to tell the public where its tax dollars appropriated for higher education are being spent.

Ferguson concluded after reviewing income and expenditure statements from the universities that "taxpayers are subsidizing intercollegiate athletics."

He said the universities spent $14.1 million but took in only $8.7 million, leaving a deficit of $5.4 million that had to be made up from general operating funds or student activity fees.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes last week at a news conference disapproved of Conlon's suggestion. "I don't think the board of regents has any business investigating the universities' athletic programs."

"Athletics has done more for America than any other cause except religion," Rhodes said.

Deficits reported by Ferguson were: Cincinnati $908,999, Kent State $859,178, Ohio University $740,300, Bowling Green $678,169, Miami $608,598, Cleveland State $426,059, Youngstown State $426,059, Akron $396,243, Wright State $189,287, Central State $80,216 and Toledo $31,087.

will be 6 p.m. instead of the regular 6:30.

Wilmington's next opponent will be Unioto on that same Tuesday night at the UHS gymnasium. The reserve game will start at 6 p.m. there also.

Circleville proves too much for MT

The Circleville Tigers demonstrated Friday why they hold the top slot in the Associated Press Class AA ratings. The Tigers opened an early lead and dominated the entire game in defeating Miami Trace 84-54.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Due to a misunderstanding on the Record-Herald staff, no representative covered the Miami Trace-Circleville basketball game Friday night. A detailed account of the varsity and reserve games was not available, and the Record-Herald extends its apologies for the brief reports of these games.

In winning their 16th game of the season without a loss and their 11th SCOL contest, the Tigers posted one of their higher season point totals in spite of the fact that several of the starters were removed from the game early in the fourth quarter.

With more than four minutes to play in the first half, it appeared that Circleville would completely bury Miami Trace as they piled up a 24-8 lead. However, the Panthers retaliated with one of their few scoring surges and closed the gap to 28-16 within the next minute of play, and held Circleville to a 12-point advantage at the half. Dan Gifford and John Schlichter scored four points each during Trace's minute long surge.

The Tigers struck quickly after the intermission and widened the lead to 20 points by the middle of the third stanza.

If any single facet of the game can be considered a primary factor in the contest, it was the rebounding strength shown by Circleville and lack of the same by Miami Trace. The Tigers pulled down 35 rebounds while the Panthers were held to just 18. Gifford led the team with just four, and Circleville was led by Moore who grabbed 13, several of which were offensive boards which resulted in points.

Circleville had a slight edge in field goal percentage although both teams shot well from the floor. The Tigers connected on 48 per cent of their attempts while Miami Trace netted 41 per cent. A substantial difference was

Miami Trace reserves clinch share of crown

The Miami Trace reserve team clinched at least a tie for the SCOL championship Friday night as they trampled Circleville 54-32. Coupled with Washington C.H.'s victory over second place Wilmington, the Panthers now enjoy a two game bulge over the Hurricane with only two games remaining.

A win over Washington C.H. Tuesday or winless Unioto next Friday will give the reserve team an undisputed league championship.

Trace broke out on top of the Tigers in the first period and were never headed. They enjoyed a 10-point advantage at halftime and were 21 points ahead at the three-quarter mark.

Led by sophomore Brant Dunn, who had 17 points, and juniors Bruce Ervin and Terry Rodgers who collected 12 and 11 points respectively, the Panthers upped their league record to 8-2 and their season mark to 12-4.

Defense was the key to the contest. Coach Mike Henry said he was very pleased to hold Circleville to just 32 points. A big part of that defense is control of the backboards, and Trace did extremely well grabbing 42 rebounds. Rodgers led the team by clearing the boards 11 times.

Tigers defeat Unioto 73-63

GREENFIELD — Greenfield McClain posted its seventh South Central Ohio League win in 11 outings Friday night by tripping Unioto 73-63 in the Tiger gymnasium.

Head coach Sam Snyder's Tigers received double digit scoring from four players to increase their all-games record to an 11-4 level.

Steve Harvey paced the balanced scoring attack as he popped in 17 points on the basis of eight field goals and a free throw. Gary Barr and Bill Flynn supported the effort with 15 and 13 points respectively.

Greg Alcorn, the South Central Ohio League's most prolific scorer, paced Unioto's attack with 19 points.

Reporter finds gaps in federal security

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Toting a gold-and-black shoebox under my arm and appearing as sinister as possible, I tested the government's newest and toughest security crackdown against bomb terrorists.

If I had been bent on violence, the hallways of the Capitol would be littered with rubble again and so might the State Department.

I also strolled freely, unchallenged by uniformed guards, through the secretary of commerce's executive suites and down the corridors of the General Services Administration, which hires and trains 3,500 guards to protect federal installations.

The Justice Department and the FBI can thank a suspicious tour guide returning from lunch, and not guards at three stations, for preventing deeper penetration of that cavernous building.

I sported a scruffy beard and even scruffier trench coat and desert boots to duplicate the first AP test of federal building security in October 1970. That was before planted bombs demolished restrooms in the Capitol in March 1971, the Pentagon in May 1972 and the State Department just last week.

GSA spokesman Rich Vawter, whose office I visited, said, "Just two days ago, I told our people that they'd better tighten up like hell because we would be tested again."

GSA ordered the tighter security last Thursday, the day after a bomb blasted a $350,000 hole at State and another bomb was found in an Army recruiting center at Oakland, Calif., and exploded harmlessly.

Guards in Washington and California now are supposed to require identification passes for entry, lock all unguarded doors and search all briefcases and packages.

The order was signed by GSA Administrator Arthur F. Sampson. I went through the front door of his building, past a female guard who was engrossed in checking out someone else.

"Oh, no! I can't believe it!" exclaimed a young woman in Sampson's office when I identified myself and displayed the shoebox.

I left notes there and at the office of Col. Frank McKetta, head of the Federal Protective Service. Both were out.

At the Capitol, Police Capt. James Powell had placed his men on an "alert-type basis" after the State bombing. Guards at the House and Senate entrances were inspecting all packages, but I breezed past the guard preoccupied on a phone at the tourist entrance under the dome and sauntered through the Capitol, mingling with senators and representatives alike.

At Justice, the guard was absent from his post in the foyer. The first guard inside refused to pass me without an I.D. card, and directed me down a hallway past offices of assistant attorneys general to another guard post.

But I trailed a group of employees returning from lunch, deftly turned the corner past the second post, and was on my way to the offices of the attorney general and FBI Director Clarence Kelley.

Suddenly, the young man ahead of me wheeled and growled: "Don't you think you should check in?"

"Are you an FBI agent?" I asked. "No, but I aspire to be one," said Michael Mott, an FBI tour guide.

The State Department was still uptight after its bombing four floors below Secretary Henry A. Kissinger's office, so I employed a little subterfuge.

I went to the diplomatic entrance and gave a woman at the reception desk the name and telephone extension of a newsman I know who works in the building's press room, but did not tell her his affiliation.

Identifying himself by name but not by his employer, he told the woman to let me pass through because he was too busy to escort me.

The guard checked the shoebox and saw nothing sinister in the tattered pair of tennis shoes inside. But he said nothing about the ominous bulge in my trench coat caused by a bulky, three-pound tape recorder concealed in an inside pocket.

I toured the building, past the gaping hole caused by last week's bombing and the workmen repairing the damage. I can report authoritatively that Kissinger and his top aides have a very pleasant reception room carpeted in a pale sea green.

At the Commerce Department, I trailed another group past three guards without being stopped, rode the elevator up to Secretary Frederick Dent's paneled office. He was out.

The Pentagon wouldn't let me in until a fellow newsman, Fred Hoffman, personally came to the desk and vouched for me.

At the Interior Department, where Indians once took over the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the guard rejected an accompanying photographer's White House pass, issued only after a security check, and demanded Interior identification.

The tall, imposing guard at the Supreme Court blocked me, as he had my predecessor four years ago.

"Please put the box on the table," he said. He stoically inspected the tennis shoes.

Council suspicious of more high prices

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Despite slackening demand for many products, prices remain high — high enough for the Council on Wage and Price Stability to get a bit suspicious.

The council said it intends to examine the pricing structure of metal cans, rubber tires and industrial chemicals in an effort to determine why the law of supply and demand seems not to be working.

Without any further investigation, however, a handful of obvious reasons can be offered in explanation of why the market place doesn't react to a pull on the reins.

REBATES — Unable to forecast what twists and turns the economy might take even a few weeks ahead, sellers are reluctant to lower their prices. Instead, they offer rebates for temporary periods of time.

The beauty of the rebate is that it is presented as a gift. In effect, it is nothing more than recognition of the reality that goods can't be sold at the stated price.

The impact of this is to keep prices higher than the market can support. In a sense, it is a market subsidy provided by the seller who, for various reasons, prefers it that way.

One reason is that a price cut might prove to be only temporary. The seller's own costs could force him to raise prices later, if government price restraints aren't applied in the meantime.

DISCOUNT FROM LIST — Very much like a rebate. Many manufacturers have been practicing this technique for decades. You quote an official price and, if necessary, bargain down from it.

If conditions improve the seller isn't in the position of having to announce a price increase. He merely eliminates the discount. Ask the steel companies about this.

COST-PLUS PRICING — When a contractor quotes a certain price to produce a product he generally assumes the risk of keeping his costs low enough to leave him a profit. But with cost-plus contracts his risk is reduced greatly.

The cost-plus contract has long been popular in producing defense products, especially those in which huge sums are involved, as well as design changes and delays. But it is popular everywhere now.

One result is that a governor on prices is removed. Spend what you want to spend so long as you can defend it. You'll still make your profit because you'll merely charge a higher price for the job.

FLOATING INTEREST RATES — In more normal times banks lend money at a specified rate of interest, assuming the risk if rates subsequently rise in the market generally.

But that inflation monitor is removed by the floating interest rate. It permits a bank to lend money to a company that otherwise might not get a loan. It reduces the bank's risk, and permits it to make riskier loans.

Whereas in a fixed-rate loan the bank cannot collect any more than the agreed upon rate, it can do so with the floating rate. If rates rise 1 per cent, then the bank just sends the borrower a bigger bill.

Banks flooded the market with such loans. If they had been restricted to fixed-rate loans they wouldn't have.

ESCALATOR CLAUSES — A form of indexation, as now practiced in Social Security payments, union-management wage agreements and other areas. If the cost of living goes up, payments rise accordingly.

While few critics will argue that there isn't an element of justice in such arrangements, it can't be overlooked that still another restraint on inflation is removed.

Large crowd attends organ concert at Grace Methodist

World renown organist Hector Olivera displayed his versatile talents before a large crowd at a concert Friday night in Grace United Methodist Church. An estimated 700 persons attended. The church seats 800 persons.

Olivera, a young Latin American organist, played both classical and popular numbers during the concert which was sponsored by the Washington C.H. Organ Club.

The concert program was arranged through the efforts of Donald Riber, of Washington C.H.

Olivera, who launched his illustrious musical career at the age of five when he assisted his father in a Buenos Aires church, received a standing ovation following the two-hour program in Grace United Methodist Church.

Assisting with the concert were Mike

Bentley and Mike Hughes. Hostesses were Mrs. Wayne Hidy, chairman, Mrs. Wayne Spengler, Mrs. John Case, Mrs. Calvin Johnson, Mrs. Barbara Lanum, Miss Marian Christopher, Mrs. Earl Hartley and Mrs. Ralph Yerian.

Home buyers to get rebate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Buyers of Dayton-based Homewood Corp.'s new single family homes before March 1, will receive a $500 cash rebate, the company has announced.

The developing and building company's President George A. Skestos said the rebate was in keeping with President Ford's anti-inflationary policies.

PUCO probe promised

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic leaders in the House and Senate pledged today to support a move to thoroughly examine the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio and its rate-making process.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., 89, New Boston, and Senate President Pro Tem Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said they will urge the General Assembly to adopt a joint resolution establishing a Senate-House Legislative committee to study the problems.

"More specifically, we are proposing that the committee examine the operations of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio to determine what, if any, statutory and administrative changes are necessary to assure that energy supplies are available to Ohio's industries and homes, and to assure that the charges for those supplies are fair and equitable ..."

The two leaders said they want the committee, yet to be selected, to move immediately with its inquiries and report its finding and recommendations before next winter.

"We want immediate action during this General Assembly," they said.

They suggested that a resolution now in the House Insurance, Utilities and Financial Institutions Committee be used as the legislative vehicle to create the Senate-House committee. That resolution would have required a study of the PUCO.

The Democratic leaders said it was conceivable, "in the not too distant future, homeowners' utility bills may equal homeowners' mortgage payments."

The Bloodless Scalpel

The laser beam has been, for years, explored for its value in certain types of surgery.

Now, a new device known as the "bloodless scalpel" may replace the laser beam in some instances.

Dr. John L. Glover, at the Indiana University Medical Center, is using this "bloodless scalpel," which is a special energized gas, for surgery of the lungs, the brain and the liver. These organs have such a rich blood supply that it is often difficult to control severe bleeding.

With this new jet-propelled gas scalpel, surgery can be performed and bleeding can be better controlled.

Dr. Glover and his collaborator, Dr. William J. Link, believe that this technique has a great many advantages in selected cases.

Excess vibrations, in the factory, while driving tractors and in other heavy industry jobs, may be the culprit in some physical conditions.

Dr. H. Haskell Zipperman, of the Southwest Research Institute, in San Antonio, Tex., recently found "significant evidence linking whole-body vibration to certain occupational diseases that interstate bus drivers develop."

He believes that "whole-body vibration could contribute to a number of vascular, bowel, respiratory, muscular and back disorders experienced by tractor drivers, truckers, bus drivers, train conductors and heavy equipment operators."

This important innovative concept may radically change the lives of many people who today are unprotected against massive whole-body vibration.

If subsequent studies continue to show vibration to be the responsible cause of varicose veins, hemorrhoids, and hernias, many new protective devices will be incorporated into industry.

The early studies of Dr. Zipperman were so significant that a comprehensive program has been undertaken by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health.

Far too many people pay a huge penalty for long-standing exposure to dangers that are unrecognized in their occupations.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has a special eye-care booklet available called, "What You Should Know About Glaucoma and Cataracts." For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Eye booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. The bidding:

Pass 1 NT Pass 3 NT

Opening lead - jack of spades.

It is often the little things that count in deciding how to play a hand. Delicate inferences can sometimes be drawn from the bidding or the early plays that tend to put one right on target.

Consider this deal where West opened the jack of spades against three notrump. Declarer won with the queen and led a diamond to the ace, on which West played the eight.

Fully appreciating the power of his six, South continued with a low diamond from his hand, West playing the ten, dummy the jack and East the queen.

Winners Tuesday were Bruce Strickling and Mrs. Larry Coil first with 56. Second were Dr. and Mrs. K.K. Burris with 52. Tied for third were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Zimmerman and Dr. Norbert Nissimov and Mrs. Craig Vandemark with 51. There were six tables and par was 48.

Dr. Burris is still leading the competition for the club trophy with 49 points. Bruce Strickling is second with 44, and Mrs. Burris is third with 43.

East returned the seven of clubs, South winning with the king as West signaled his approval with the nine.

By now, South had drawn several firm conclusions on how the adverse cards were distributed. It seemed certain, from East's failure to return a spade, that West had started with six spades. It also seemed likely that West had four clubs, judging from East's play of the seven and West's play of the nine.

So, in order to complete his count on West's hand, South led a low heart towards dummy, West following suit with the nine as East took dummy's queen with the ace and played a second club to dummy's queen.

Backing his opinion that West had started with 6-1-2-4 distribution, declarer led the seven of diamonds from dummy and finessed. West showing out, South continued with a heart from dummy and finessed the six after East had followed low.

So declarer wound up making four notrump by virtue of his careful calculations, a result he would not have accomplished had he played the hand in bang-bang style. His early detective work paid good dividends at the end.

Youth Activities

Wahanka Ka Ta

The Wahanka Ka Ta group held their meeting after school Wednesday. Mrs. Bert Yarger, our guardian, told us of the various activities that we would be doing this month and next. All girls were asked to meet Saturday, to have their group picture taken and then we will sell balloons for the Heart Fund. Refreshments were served to nine members by Jo Lynn Bobst. At the next meeting on February 12, Kim Preston and Jackie Baxter will serve refreshments.

SCOUT TROOP 229

The meeting of Boy Scout Troop 229 was called to order at 7:10 p.m. Tuesday, when we discussed the coming trip to the Center of Science and Industry in Columbus on Feb. 15.

Jeff Overly gave a demonstration on trail signs. We split up into patrols for brief meetings, which closed at 8:30 p.m.

Scout Troop 229 is open to any boy wishing to join Scouting. We meet every Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Grace United Methodist Church.

COUNTRY COUSINS 4-H

The first meeting of the Country Cousins 4-H Club was held Tuesday, in the home of Cynthia Cunningham. New officers were elected. They are: President, Loretta Braun; vice president, Diane Burke; secretary, Nancy Rapp; treasurer, Cynthia Cunningham; news reporter, Joanie McCoy; health, Carmen West; safety, Diane Blessing; recreation, Lana Fridley and Kim Chakeres, and devotional, Sherry Self.

Kim Chakeres lead the pledges, and Nancy Rapp moved that we plan a project for later. Dues will be $1.25 with 25c to go the Camp Clifton fund for camp improvement. We will meet the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of each month, and the next meeting will be February 18th.

Joanie McCoy, news reporter

KONA DE WA KI KI

Our meeting of the Kona De Wa Ki Ki opened with Susan Wilson leading the Pledge of Allegiance. Robin Hicks led the Desire Pledge and Minday Provost called the roll. Mrs. Clyde Bowers gave charms to all girls who sold 12 or more boxes of Camp Fire candy. Each charm had inscribed the number of boxes sold.

Becky Derryberry served refreshments. Mrs. Eddie Ford took us to the TV station and we appeared on Channel 3. We are all going to sell balloons for the Heart Fund, Feb. 8 at Buckeye Mart.

Underlying economic problems eyed

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford has adequately publicized the harsh outlook for those most immediate and obvious signs of the nation's health — jobs, prices, energy — but there's much more wrong with the economy.

Underlying the distressful statistics is a feeling that the men and institutions of the country are inadequate or irresponsible to its problems.

Just a few months ago the American people were told by the administration that there was no recession, and behind that judgment lay the opinions and resources of what should be the best informed minds in the country.

A feeling exists among businessmen, union leaders and government officials that many institutions are out of whack with the times, and that they aren't likely to synchronize with reality very soon.

Some regulatory agencies, by admission even of their own officials, are badly out of tune with the times. Special interest regulations and other practices whose rationale has been lost, cost taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars a year. Studies by the government itself confirm this.

The Interstate Commerce Commission requires certain delivery trucks to return home empty. The Civil Aeronautics Board rejects an application by an airline to fly scheduled New York-London flights for $125 each way.

There is widespread dissatisfaction with the relative powers of federal, state and local governments.

Beyond the country's borders, the whole world is changing. Power is shifting. The patterns of trade are changing. And people wonder if there exists the proper machinery and mentality for coping with the change.

The problems are not solely in the public sector. So-called private enterprise is suffering its own distortions. "Mature" companies now seem to settle into a bureaucratic, noncompetitive niche that steers toward insolvency.

Rather than seeking reorganization through bankruptcy, some executives prefer to seek federal aid and even think it is their right. Sometimes they hold hostage the jobs and general wellbeing of thousands of workers.

Eugene Jennings, professor at Michigan State University and confidential adviser to many corporate chairmen and presidents, believes many of today's top executives aren't competent to handle the myriad problems thrown at them.

Most, he explains, worked up through their companies during the boom days of the 1960s, when the only criterion of an executive's performance was in sales and profits. His focus was narrow.

In their quest for those profits, corporate management sometimes drained energy from the company, leaving it without the physical plant and managerial competence to meet environmental, political, and economic problems so common today.

Companies that developed elaborate fringe benefits programs during good times now find themselves forced to curtail their benefaction. Because of a depressed stock market, corporate pension programs are costing dearly.

But even the best of companies are being thwarted by institutional malfunction. The Committee of Publicly Owned Companies, made up of solid, middle-size companies, complains its members can't sell their shares.

Why? Because the big institutions — the funds, trusts, insurers — that dominate the markets concentrate their interest on 100 stocks or so. The public, which used to make up what was called a random market, has withdrawn.

TOGETHER AT LAST — Sergei Ignashev reaches to hug his wife at Kennedy Airport in New York, upon Ignashev's arrival from Russia. They were married last July in Moscow, but Diane, an American who lives in Chicago, was forced to leave the Soviet Union shortly after the marriage and thought she might not see Sergei for years.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Congressman William H. Harsha today introduced a bill aimed at eliminating or reducing time consuming procedural requirements for public works projects. The main thrust behind the bill is to speed up and initiate actual construction on public works projects.

Harsha said: "It is ironic that the nation suffers increasing unemployment in the building and construction industries at the very time that literally billions of dollars worth of badly needed and Congressionally approved civil works projects suffer ridiculous delays in administrative processing of grant applications. We must cut through these barriers and get those funds released. By eliminating or at least reducing time consuming paper work requirements," said Harsha, "we can achieve reduced unemployment, enhance national productivity, economic growth and prosperity."

"As an example," he said, "in 1966, average processing time for public works grants was 79 days. In 1970, it had grown 348 days — almost a full year just to shuffle the papers."

Congressman Harsha, the ranking minority member of the House Committee on Public Works, said the legislation is aimed at speeding up the processing of those projects already approved for the years 1975 and 1976.

"When unemployment is on the rampage, it is incredible that red-tape is allowed to interfere with the implementation of job-producing projects that have already been approved by Congress," he continued. "I want to eliminate a lot of the requirements like time, hearings, reporting and publication that hinder initiation or completion of particular projects."

"There is real danger when we allow an economic downturn to continue unchecked until it no longer responds to corrective measures," said Harsha. "To unnecessarily delay these projects any longer is absolutely absurd and I intend to see that the ball gets rolling."

$509,500 sought
in Sabina suit

SABINA — A Sabina couple has filed suit in Clinton County Common Pleas Court requesting a total of $509,500 in damages and costs resulting from a motorcycle-auto accident.

John and Connie Waddle contend that Jean Pettit, a minor, was driving an auto licensed to her mother, Luella, Pettit, at an excessive speed. The girl did not maintain a safe distance between her auto and the motorcycle driven by Waddle, the suit contends.

Besides Waddle's loss of work and pay, the suit claims he will be restricted in movement for the rest of his life, and faces additional surgery.

The suit asks $400,000 in damages and costs, and Mrs. Waddle asks for $100,000 for loss of "the service, love and affection of her husband."
